St. Louis Trust adds three new managers and a rotational analyst fellow

We are pleased to announce we have hired four new, exceptional team members: Ryan Brandt, Jacob Brydels, Andrew Stange and Elizabeth Yannakakis.

Ryan, Jacob and Elizabeth have joined our team as Managers, directly responsible for serving client families. Andrew, who will start in July as a Rotational Analyst Fellow, will engage in client service projects and participate in various company-wide initiatives.

Ryan graduated magna cum laude from University of Missouri with a degree in accounting and completed his Master in Accountancy the following year. He is a CPA and worked for Ernst & Young as a tax associate until early 2019. He then moved to UHY's audit practice where he worked as an audit staff and senior.

Jacob received a degree in accounting from Missouri State University. He began his career in traditional accounting roles until 2017 when he transitioned to a client service manager role with the St. Louis-based RIA firm Moneta.

Elizabeth graduated magna cum laude from Auburn University with a degree in accounting and completed her Master in Accountancy the following year. After graduation she joined PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP full-time (she had previously interned with the firm) in the Transfer Pricing group in September 2016. Elizabeth is a CPA.

Andrew recently graduated from Indiana University with degrees in Finance and Business Analytics. In the summer after his sophomore year of college, he studied at the Zagreb School of Economics and Management in Croatia. Andrew has previously interned with Edward Jones and the American Red Cross.
